Scribble Press is proud to partner with Young Writers' Conference to bring noted writers to lead our special one day workshops.

Adventures in Storytelling

a hands-on writers' workshop for kids ages 7-11

Young writers will learn, through simple steps, how to craft an exciting story. From creating cool characters to finding the heart of a story, writers will discover how to use their imagination and inspiration to produce an outstanding piece of work. Come join us and build something that is unforgettable and uniquely you!

April 19, 1-4pm

$95 per child

Scribble Press is the first store where you can write, illustrate and publish your own books. Visit us in the Westside Pavilion or at www.scribblepress.com.

The mission of the Young Writers' Conference is to improve the writing skills of students by first instilling a passion for writing. They do this by pairing students with professional writers from a wide variety of disciplines in a series of workshops. For nearly a decade, YWC has been bringing their program, which is organized like a university conference, to elementary and middle school students throughout the Los Angeles region.

This workshop will be led by professional writer, Anne Krumney. Anne worked for years as a Writer/Producer for ABC and the Fox Broadcasting Co. She received an Emmy Award for her work as Executive Producer of the teen magazine show, MegaZine.
